

Schools Cannot Do It Alone

Building support for America's public schools in an effort to increase student achievement and success.

Jamie Vollmer

Powerful economic, political and entrepreneurial forces are driving change in schools across the country, but it takes a community effort to make meaningful changes that will help school's meet today's challenges.

Don't miss this opportunity to hear Jamie Vollmer, award-winning author of "Schools Cannot Do It Alone." His presentation combines statistics, logic, and humor to energize and encourage educators, business leaders, and community groups to work together to build successful schools and increase student achievement.
